This morning, Ted Marsden and I visited landmine-affected families in the rural villages of Kep, Cambodia. Through www.aminefreeworld.org, this couple will be provided with a breeding calf. Chan Say lost his forearms in 1993 while trying to extract a landmine out of the ground while clearing his land. His wife lost her forearm in the same year. Your donation can help provide self-sustainability to a family.

20171221 Update: Chan Say and his wife receive their breeding calf.

Many thanks to Sokhal Seng who took Ted Marsden and I into the rural villages in Kep to help landmine-affected families. This landmine survivor will receive a pig-rearing business through www.aminefreeworld.org .
